Speaker Biography

Mrs Sarah Russell

Sarah Russell joined Hospice UK as Head of Research and Clinical Innovation in November 2015.

She has worked in hospice and NHS palliative care (as a clinical nurse specialist, manager, educator and researcher) for over 20 years in the hospital, community and hospice setting. Sarah's clinical expertise is in advance care planning and communication skills and she is just completing her Professional Doctorate in Health Research in this area. She has led, designed, evaluated and managed formal and informal education (including e-learning for e-ELCA and NHS East of England) and clinical teams across a variety of hospice, hospital, community and care home settings. She is particularly interested in person centred relational advance care planning, communication, care home and multi professional education with associated evaluation and outcome measurements. Her passion is to make the seemingly inaccessible, accessible and to implement and embed excellent care through sharing ideas, experiences and evidence.

Sarah tweets as @learnhospice and @WeEOLC and can be contacted on s.russell@hospiceuk.org
